

Projects

The Universidad de Granada has a long tradition and proven experience in implementing and coordinating academic and institutional cooperation projects as part of international programmes. With a view to encouraging members of the university community to get more involved in these activities, we describe the most important cooperative programmes below and tell you about open calls for proposals and how you can take part in them. We also invite our future associates to contact us if they would be interested in collaborating with our University in any call for proposals for international projects.
