The IV Granada International Student Theatre Festival - November 2011

Short description: The University of Granada currently organises various events each year to foster awareness of ongoing theatrical projects both within the university community as well as in collaboration with other Spanish, European and non-European universities.

These activities emerge out of our ongoing commitment to university theatre; indeed, we are proud to have sponsored past projects which have gone on to enjoy wider recognition in the city of Granada or throughout Spain.

Our annual international theatre festival (Festival Internacional de Teatro Universitario de Granada) allows us, for one week each November, to celebrate the scenic arts in the context of international dialogue and exchange of ideas, with special emphasis on the formation of an awareness of the theory and practice of theatre.

This year, the UGR, in preparation for the 4th Annual University Theatre Festival in November 2011, wishes to open up an invitation to other Universities to submit projects and ideas for theatrical cooperation by no later than May 30th 2011 so that they can be evaluated by a selection committee.

The committee formed by the Director of the Cultural Extension Office, the Director of the Theatre Events Area and the Director of the Festival, will evaluate the projects in June to decide which proposals to include in the 2011 Festival.

The UGR opens its International University Centre (IUC) in Mostar to its Partner Universities

Short description: With the major aim of trying to impulse and to facilitate cross-collaboration between both local Institutions in the field of Higher Education, the University of Granada has developed a training infrastructure in Mostar that we share with the University Dzemal Bijedic and the University of Mostar. This joint facility is currently placed at the North side of the Spanish Square of Mostar, a very centric and symbolic location of the city. Today its location is still rather close to the line bordering the neighbourhood communities (Croat and Bosniac) that currently share the city and own both local universities.

The facility in Mostar, initially devoted for training in Applied Biology and EU Languages and Cultures includes complete specific equipment and media resources. If you want to organise summer courses, workshops, etc. in Mostar, the University of Granada welcomes any initiative from its Partner Universities. If you need more information you can get in touch with us through the following email: internationalization@ugr.es

Red Alumni Universidad.es

Short description: The “Universidad.es” Spanish Alumni Network offers you the chance to keep in touch with the Spanish university world once your study or research period in our country is over. As a member of the network, you will receive regular information on events related to Spanish culture and on the activities organized by the Universidad.es Foundation and the universities in Spain and elsewhere throughout the year. You’ll also receive information on funding opportunities for further training and research. But most importantly you’ll be able to keep in contact with the universities in Spain and with other students and researchers who, like you, received part of their university training in our country.
