

Language courses

During your stay at the University of Granada it is possible to learn and improve your Spanish, as well as other languages, thanks to UGR's wide range of linguistic initiatives.

Language courses and initiatives for the linguistic promotion at the university of Granada

• Centro de Lenguas Modernas:

The University Modern Language Centre, Centro de Lenguas Modernas, located in the central and typically "granadino" district of the "Realejo", is housed in the old palace of Santa Cruz (16th century) which has been specially restored for teaching purposes. Since restoration was completed in 1992, the new Centro de Lenguas Modernas offers not only its now renowned Spanish Courses for Foreigners (Hispanic Studies Course (CEH), Spanish Language and Culture Course (CLCE), Intensive Spanish Language Courses (CILE), Intensive Spanish Language and Culture Course (CILYC), Spanish as Foreign Language Course (CELE) and Optional January Course (CCE)) but also a variety of Modern Language Courses (English, French, Italian, German, Catalan, Arabic, Japanese, Portuguese, Russian and Swedish). It is the combination of the two that make the centre such an original venture; here foreign students can share their daily lives with those of Spanish students, thus stimulating a mutual interest in their different languages and cultures. This contact is strengthened through a language exchange service, which gives students the opportunity to practice their Spanish outside the classroom, and by cultural visits and activities. <http://www.clm-granada.com>

• Confucius Institute:

The Confucius Institute of the University of Granada (ICUGR) is a non-profit making organization created thanks to the collaboration between the University of Granada (UGR) and the University of Beijing ().
